July 2013

Volume 3 Edition 7

Editorial

Welcome to the Navy Victoria Network newsletter for July 2013. Our newsletter now incorporates NCCV's newsletter "Rogues' Yarn"

Another month has passed and apart from AFL there are many maritime items of interest in Victoria. The aim of the NVN is to be an information website and hopefully noting all the news items in the past few months these aims are being met. Being the middle of winter why not visit one of the many museums located throughout Victoria, with a number within just over a one hour drive from Melbourne.

Two significant museums are the HMAS Cerberus Museum which has excellent displays of naval heritage and history, and also the Queenscliff Maritime Museum that has excellent displays of artefacts focused mainly on the lifeboat service and history of Port Phillip. It also has displays of historical ship wrecks along the Victorian coastline. Don't forget the old WW2 veteran HMAS Castlemaine in Williamstown, you will be surprised at her superb internal restoration and displays.

The recently opened Vietnam Veterans Commemorative Walk at Seymour in Victoria that has the names of every person who served in Vietnam listed on the walls is noted in the July News section of the NVN. A video was taken by Laurie Pegler is attached and well worth looking at to see the magnificent effort by those who had it constructed.

For information on these and other Museums in Victoria visit either the Maritime Museums of Victoria website Calendar Events (see calendar for details of all events)

If you are really interested in daily maritime activities in Port Phillip Bay log onto the Port of Melbourne website, http://www.portofmelbourne.com. The new live web cams cover the bay from Point Lonsdale, the Fawkner Beacon in the middle of the bay, and the main container and passenger terminals in Port Melbourne. All of these live cameras enable you to see the amazing amount of shipping traffic and activity within the bay.

Another website that may be of interest and advised of in a previous newsletter, is the "Historic Naval Ships Association" www.hnsa.org which lists worldwide locations and photographs of approximately 175 historic naval ships with some excellent links as well. The website was established to support the preservation of historic naval vessels and to honour those who served at sea in defence of the nation. The preserved naval vessels in Australia are all individually listed.

There continues to be a number of interesting activities and information sessions with well-known speakers at the Shrine, so please take time to look at the calendar. Of particular note for the RAN, it should be noted that Vietnam Veteran's Day Ceremony is being held at the Shrine on the 18th of August commencing with a gun fire breakfast at 1000 followed by the march at 1130.

The NUSHIP Canberra completion continues to steadily progress at Williamstown with testing of the Combat System, main generators and other machinery well underway. The RAN web site has a virtual tour on many of the internal areas of the ship including mess decks, galleys and accommodation areas. The NVN website Gallery Folder has a number of images of the loading and delivery voyage.

Do not forget that the week commencing the 1ST of September is Legacy Week. The support provided by this organisation is continuing to be extremely important as families continue to require their valued and necessary support. If you are able to assist please contact your local area Legacy Club. Contact details of capital city and regional contacts are listed on the Legacy on all aspects of diversity is a key priority for the Chief of Navy, which is why he has recently appointed a Strategic Advisor on Islamic Cultural Affairs. More....

Vietnam Veterans Commemorative Walk from the webmaster In June I visited the recently completed Vietnam Veterans Commemorative Walk in Seymour, Victoria. It commemorates the 60,000+ men and women who served in Vietnam. The name of every person who served in Vietnam is listed on the walls. The Walk incorporates a meandering red earth path set in native trees and grasses that resemble rubber trees and rice paddies. If you are ever travelling along the Hume Hwy, take the exit to Seymour to visit. It is an amazing and emotional visit. With the photos I took, I created a slide show and have placed it on YouTube. Click here to view the video....

The first Royal Fleet Review is recorded as being held in 1415 when Henry V reviewed his ships prior to sailing to France. An expedition that ended in victory for England at Agincourt. Since then, the Royal Navy has held 46 fleet reviews, the most recent in 2005 to commemorate the bicentenary of the Battle of Trafalgar. The first review of Royal Australian Bay on 26 May 1920. The fleet at that time was inspected by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. The Australian Fleet at that time consisted of 28 vessels, each anchored in four lines between Port Gellibrand and Point Ormond. More recently, on 4 October 1986, the RAN held a Naval Assembly and Review in honour of the 75th anniversary of the granting of its Royal title. The Duke of Edinburgh was the presiding officer and 27 ships from seven nations took part. In 1988, the RAN held a Bicentennial Naval Salute to commemorate the 200th anniversary of European settlement in Australia. Fifteen nations and 59 warships took part. Plans had been made to host a Naval Salute in 2001 during the Centenary of Federation celebrations, however, owing to the terrorist events of 11 September 2001 that year in Washington and New York, the review was cancelled. The RAN has sent its warships to many overseas reviews, not only to those held by the Royal Navy. In 1976 the United States Navy held a major review in New York to mark the 200th anniversary of US independence, and other navies have since held reviews as part of anniversary celebrations in Malaya, Korea, India, China, Canada, New Zealand and Japan to name but a few. The reasons for holding a fleet review vary. Originally they were held when a fleet mobilised for war or when a nation wished to demonstrate the strength of its fleet to potential enemies. From the early part of the twentieth century, it became customary for the Royal Navy to host a review to mark Navy warships was held in Port Phillip the coronation and significant jubilees of the reigning monarch. The last commemorative review held by the Royal Navy was in 1977 to mark the Silver Jubilee of Queen Elizabeth II. Other fleet reviews have included those to mark the presentation of the Sovereign's Colours to the Royal Navy as well as those convened to celebrate victories, such as that held in 1919 at the end of WW I. Allied co-operation has also been commemorated in reviews, such as the NATO review held in 1969. The largest naval review held was never advertised for it was a review of the D-Day invasion fleet in May 1944; 800 vessels were present ranging from capital vessels to small minesweepers and landing craft. The next most important review is the RAN review in Sydney Harbour on 4/5th October this year. At least 20 RAN Warships and Warships from more than 20 countries, including USA, Russia, China and the UK will be in Sydney. A spectacular event!

> The first major display of Warships in Australia was the visit of the USA Great White Fleet in 1908

Navy Victoria Network

The NavyVIC website is there for all to see, in particular it is for Navy Associations to provide information on their activities to the wider Navy Community in Victoria . An opportunity not to be missed.

Excuse our mistake! In the last edition we wrote that LS Noel Shipp made the supreme sacrifice in 1963, it was 1969.

President's Report

With eighteen months to go before the Centennial year of ANZAC the Navy Community need to give some serious thought to how we wish to emphasize our heritage. Much of the thinking will be Army, not unusual in Victoria, however, this represents an opportunity for us to make some headway. Firstly we need to be seen to act as being like minded. That is not to say we can't contribute our individual initiatives. but it does mean we need to schedule carefully and if possible do something different. NCCV has had discussions with representatives of the Naval Association, Navy-League, Melbourne Naval Centre and Navy had the distinction of attending Fleet Re-Victoria Network. There is considerable interest in making a concerted effort. Now we need all potential advocates within the Navy Community to also express an interest. Whilst we have yet to lock on to a proposal that we can all harness, we are close to this goal. A reasonable way of supporting the Centennial year is to join up with others, that could be your Ship Association joining another Association to support a single course of action. The NCCV is more than willing to work with any Associa- hope you are on course for full recovery. tion that wishes to explore the options open Best wishes, Terry Makings to them. Keep an eye on the NVN website to see if others are expressing interest in joining in during 2015. In the meantime we still have our routine activities to manage during this year, such as the flagship events. The effort put into these events over recent years has witnessed a gradual and consistent increase in participation. Thanks to the regulars who are the stalwarts in Victoria. The biggest event this year will be the International Fleet Review in Sydney and as outlined on page one, this will be well worth witnessing. Some of our colleagues have views here and in the UK. Although each Review carries with it some unique aspect, the primary and inspirational attribute is seeing so many warships from a number of counties proudly lined up for all to see. There is no better place than Sydney Harbour to witness such an event - does anyone think we will ever see another Review in Port Phillip Bay? Many of our WWII ex-Navy colleagues are not entirely seaworthy at the moment, we

Stuart III

The fleet welcomed STUART III back into active service recently after the crew of ANZAC III managed a hull swap. The crew sailed ANZAC to Fleet Base West and executed the swap, then navigated STUART for the purpose of writing an article. No edition of back to Fleet Base East. The STUART ship's company is particularly skilled, having earned the Gloucester Cup during their time in ANZAC. ↓ STUART underway towards FBW, Sydney.

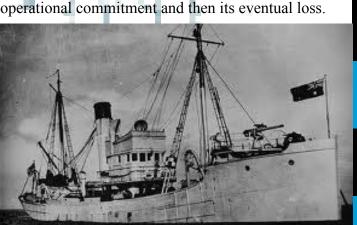

Red Sea Rig

Back in the old days everyone was familiar with 'Red Sea Rig' for Officers as night rig, or Schooner Rig for Sailors. Whilst uniforms have changed these days, the photograph below shows four of our best (HoDs) in HMAS NEWSCASTLE in Red Sea Rig whilst the ship was in the Red Sea.

Navy Daily

Navy has launched a new online news website at http://news.navy.gov.au called Navy Daily. This stream complements Navy News, other internet sites and social media through online delivery of news stories about activities likely to be of interest to the ex-Navy community. Navy Daily is a contemporary method of communication that will enable all of us to appreciate Navy's capacity and professionalism.

Centennial 2015

There is an important opportunity for us to contribute to the year 2015, Centennial of ANZAC. All ex-Navy Associations should look at their capacity to contribute in some small way to the events over year 2015. With some effort we can prompt the wider Navy community such that they may consider joining in as we reflect on years gone by. Our purpose is not to glorify war, but to see how we might honour those that served at a time of great peril to Australia. We might recall our own service as pretty ordinary, however, a little thought as to how the crew of the submarine AE1 went about their duty should crystallise our thinking. Hopefully you will include Centennial 2015 on the agenda at your next Association meeting. NCCV is keen to identify a specific project that we can all support. This will follow discussions across many of our foundation organisations where we will seek agreement and collaboration. We are underway!

Flag Ship Events. The next Flag Ship Event is the Taylor Division RAN Recruit School Inaugural Seafarers Commemorative Service to be held at 1030, Sunday 20OCT13, at the Cenotaph-Shrine of Remembrance. This year the Seafarers Church Service and the Navy Wreath Laying Service will be combined into this one significant service. HMAS GOORANGAI Commemorative Service will commence at 1130 on Sunday, 17NOV13 at the Ocean View Reserve, Queenscliff. This will be preceded by a short march, led by the Geelong Memorial Brass Band and will step off at 1115 from the RSL Hall, King Street. Keep watch for the invite to the lunch at the RSL Hall afterwards. Shipp Division. The first RAN Recruit Division named after a sailor, comprising 100 young men and women participated in a wreath laying service at the Shrine of Remembrance on Sunday, 07JUL13. A very impressive group of young Australians who were appraised of their Navy heritage. Pilgrimages to the Shrine of Remembrance. Pilgrimages (services) on behalf of Ship/Unit/ Category Associations conducted at the Shrine of Remembrance are open to everyone, you do not need an invitation. All services are an opportunity for Veterans, their family to reflect on past service.

Taylor Division comprises 100 men and women who stand to exhibit the key values sought from today's sailors. On their journey they will be expected to uphold the heritage derived from the distinguished service of Leading Seaman Ronald Taylor. He was in HMAS Yarra (II) during World War II when on 4 March 1942 the ship engaged five Japanese warships which had intercepted the convoy Yarra was escorting. Although providing a gallant defence, all allied vessels were destroyed, with Yarra the last to be sunk. Despite an order to abandon ship, Taylor stayed alone at his gun, firing slowly and defiantly at the enemy until he was killed shortly before the ship went down. Navy Victoria Network Website Is your Association listed on the NVN Website yet? If not, it's time to share your contact details with others as we aim to increase the involvement of ex-Navy men and women and their descendants. If our colleagues are to engage, there is a need to ensure the means of making contact is readily available. Whilst NCCV will channel any enquiries we receive to the appropriate person/association, it would be best to make direct contact.
